PROSTATE CANCER IS THE MOST COMMONLY DIAGNOSED CANCER IN MEN.

Not everyone experiences symptoms, but changes in urinary or sexual function might indicate the presence of prostate cancer. Your risk of developing prostate cancer increases with age, but that doesn't mean it's a disease that only affects old men.

If you're 50, you should be talking to your doctor about PSA testing, which is a routine blood test. If you are of African or Caribbean descent or have a brother or father with prostate cancer in their history, do it at 45.

Talk to your doctor.
Catch prostate cancer early.
